TWO BIG STAKE RACES TO BE RUN TODAY

COLD, BLEAK WEATHER

Friday's Racing at Lexington Held Under Adverse Conditions.

Pure Dee Goes Down to Defeat in Main Race—Zucchini Rides Three Winners.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 21.—Cold, bleak weather was the rule here this afternoon, with a mantle of fog and darkness enveloping the course at times that precluded proper vision of the running of some of the races. The heavy early rain had converted the track into a circular racing strip of heavy mud and suited only to the more sturdy type of performers.

Considering the adverse weather, it was surprising that even the crowd at hand braved pneumonia to witness the racing. Of course, the attendance fell off considerably from former days, likewise the betting activities were curtailed to a considerable extent.

In keeping with the conditions was the racing offering, which was entirely devoid of any feature and brought to the post some of the more ordinary ones in these parts. Five of the seven races were sprinting dashes over the futurity course.

The feature was the fifth race and it brought together some fairly fast ones, with Pure Dee a pronounced choice and staunchly backed. He went down to defeat in somewhat handy fashion, Cherrycote being victress here, after she had been subjected to some strenuous racing to dispose of Auntie Millin. The latter, ridden by Zucchini, was taken wide in the stretch and interfered with Cherrycote at this stage, but the latter speedily overcame the difficulty and drew out in the last eighth, to win well under restraint. Pure Dee came with a stout rush during the stretch and succeeded in overtaking Auntie Millin. Had Zucchini, on the latter, attended to riding his own mount, Auntie Millin would have landed in second place.

DIVIDE RIDING HONORS.

Jockeys Zucchini and Ivan Parke starred during the afternoon. The latter won two races, and Zucchini went him one better. Zucchini has much to commend him. He is a hustler and gets his mounts away well from the post. A horse runs well for him, despite his awkward saddle carriage, seems fearless and not averse to resorting to roughing. As a rider, however, he has much to learn of the fine points.

He began his victories with Brother John in the second race, in which he beat home Huon Pine, with Dr. Glenn following. It was over the Futurity Course and Brother John had the better of a ragged start, due mostly to Statler bolting when the barrier was released, interfering with Newmarket and Billy Gardner. Zucchini kept Brother John at top speed for the entire way, and the others never could get close to him.

He followed his initial success with a victory on Shindy in the fourth race. Annie Lyle was the favorite here, and she was in the wake of the winner throughout, but at no time was good enough to threaten him seriously. Shindy was a victor in a former start also, but this fact seemingly was forgotten for he was neglected in the betting. Repeater, under a heavy impost, finished in third place.

Will Wells was the third winner that Zucchini piloted. Doubt as to the colt's mud running ability detracted from his support, and Homing Bird was the favored one, with Star Girl also coming in for much attention.

Will Wells began well, and, responding gamely to his rider's hustling tactics, he disposed of My Destiny, and drew out in the stretch, to win with much in reserve. My Destiny held on long enough to outstay the poorly ridden Homing Bird, the favorite.

TWO FOR IVAN PARKE.

Jockey Parke's victories came in the first and third races. He was astride Mary Johnston in the first race and he rushed her into the lead soon after the start and continuing gamely, won by a short length from the outsider, Mit, with Wuhu in third place. Mary Johnston was a favorite.

On Fasnet in the third race he had to exert his best skill to get home in advance for Twilight Hour was pressing him hard for the entire way, and continued to finish gamely. Fair Vision, an earlier strong contender, began fading in the last eighth, but was good enough to outstay the others for third place.

Thirty yearlings, the property of J. E. Maden, were this morning shipped from Hamburg Place to Churchill Downs to go into winter quarters and be gotten ready for spring racing.

Rich Breeders' Futurity at Lexington

Attracts Good Field of Juveniles

Twenty Named for G. D. Bryan Memorial Handicap, Saturday's Outstanding at Bowie---Kentucky Racing for 1924 Ends This Afternoon

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 21.—The Kentucky racing season of 1924 will come to an end tomorrow with the decision of the rich Breeders' Futurity and a supplementary program that promises an afternoon of high-class sport.

For the Breeders' Futurity eleven two-year-olds of excellent racing credentials are named to strive for the rich prize, the last big stake feature of the Kentucky racing season. This fixture closed for nominations July 1, 1922, and received 648 entries at $5 each, representing $3,240 in entrance fees. On January 1, 1923, 531 paid $10 each to remain eligible under the conditions, while on January 1, 1924, 257 paid $20 each and on July 1, 1924, 122 paid $30 each. These fees added to the $5,000 offered by the Kentucky Association made the gross value of the race $22,350 without the starting fees, which amount to $250 each. In the event that ten start the net value to the winner will be approximately $19,000. A race worth while winning.

H. P. Whitney sent two of his good two-year-olds here to try for it in Noah and Candy Kid. Noah has won four races, finished second once, third once and fourth once in his last seven starts. Candy Kid has raced with distinction time and again and is a real dangerous candidate.

Kentucky Cardinal is the hope of the West, the Breckinridge colt being considered one of the stars of the juvenile division of the year. Oh Susanna, the crack Camden filly, with seven straight victories to her credit, is another westerner that may be counted on to make it interesting for the Whitney stars. It should be a good race and a befitting finale of a wonderfully successful year of racing in the Blue Grass state.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 21.—It is indeed a wonderful field for this late period of the year that has been named to contest for the $10,000 added G. D. Bryan Memorial Handicap, fifth and feature attraction of tomorrow's program at Prince Georges Park. Twenty are carded to start in this mile stake and with Wise Counsellor, Spot Cash, Shuffle Along, Sunsini, Worthmore, Princess Doreen, Senator Norris, Spot Cash, Reparation and others among the probable starters the prospects are that a smashing good contest will entertain the big crowd that is certain to be present to see its decision.

CHILHOWEE TRANSFER MADE FAIRY MASTER DESTROYED

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 21.—Chilhowee, recently bought by the Swingalong Stable for $50,000, has been turned over by the former owners and the colt is at present at the Lexington track in care of trainer R. T. Watts, who will ship him to New Orleans and prepare him for his racing there, which will include the $25,000 added New Orleans Handicap on February 7.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 21.—Fairy Master, a two-year-old brown colt by Star Master-Sand Fairy, the property of the Audley Farm Stable, broke his right fore leg while being galloped this morning and had to be destroyed. The accident happened as the colt struck the path near the finishing line. Jockey T. Murray, who was riding the colt, escaped injury.

FEATURE TO PRIMROSE

W. J. Salmon's Two-Year-Old Wins Rainbow Handicap.

Demurrage Furnishes Upset in Fourth—Picnic Outlasts Play On and Rags.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 21.—W. J. Salmon's two-year-old Primrose was an easy winner of the Rainbow Handicap, which featured this afternoon's card. At the end Primrose had a wide margin over Miss Cerina, while Polly Wale was third.

Eight of the ten fillies and mares named overnight answered the bugle call and Primrose was accorded the bulk of the support. The start gave her supporters no cause for dismay, for under steady restraint she followed the fast pace established by Sun Lady and Miss Cerina and it was not until the far turn was reached that Pierce called upon her. She raced by the leaders with no effort and quickly drew into a safe lead. Miss Cerina raced prominently from the start and after disposing of Sun Lady stood off determined opposition from Polly Wale through the stretch and at the end had a good length advantage over the latter. Forest Flower appeared to start with the field but propped.

UNSETTLED WEATHER.

Cloudy weather conditions prevailed this afternoon but the crowd was well up to the standard. The racing despite the upsets furnished some good finishes.

The running of the fourth race furnished an upset when Demurrage was winner in a drive from the Audley Farm's Spanish Name, while B. Hardin's Sandrae was third. Bill Winfrey, the popular choice, was as good as left at the post. Zero Hour was the one to display the highest speed, while Demurrage and Sandrae were well up and Spanish Name racing in the middle of the band. Zero Hour lengthened his lead entering the stretch but through the final eighth collapsed and at the end quit badly, to finish in the ruck. Demurrage, under O'Hara's good riding, had a length advantage over Spanish Name, which in turn barely beat Sandrae for second place. The later came again after dropping back at the eighth post. The winner paid the longest price of the afternoon.

E. K. Bryson's Gold Mount was an easy winner of the second race, which engaged thirteen platers at seven-eighths. Vulnad raced to second place, while Belcross was third. The winner was ridden by F. Stevens and, after racing Chief James into defeat, drew away into an easy lead and through the final sixteenth was under restraint. Vulnad began slowly but closed with a rush on the outside, while Belcross ran well all the way.

The running of the third race resulted in a close finish when Picnic just lasted to gain a nose decision over Play On, while Rags was third. Picnic followed the early pace closely and, after disposing of the leaders round the far turn, drew into a brief lead. However, through the final eighth Play On closed with a rush and finished going fast and would have won in another stride. Rags closed an immense gap to be third.

FAENZA BEATS MODO.

Jockey Weiner's riding of Faenza was in direct contrast to that in his previous race and as a result he was up in the closing strides to beat Modo at the end of a mile and a sixteenth. Hyperion was a distant third. Faenza had plenty of speed and quickly drew into the lead. He was taken back of the pace which was cut out by Modo. Through the stretch he responded to urging and just got up. Hyperion, after following the others the first part, came with a rush.

Maidens of all ages paraded for the running of the first race which was at a mile and seventy yards, and the winner turned up in Marshall Field's Enslaved, over Cardiff, while Zeebrugge was third. Much of the interest in the race was detracted when Zeebrugge began in a tangle and was far back in the first part. Had he begun with the leaders there might have been a different finish. Enslaved followed the pace under steady restraint for the greater part of the distance and it was not until into the stretch that Hudgins called upon him. He disposed of Cardiff, but to the end was kept under pressure. Cardiff showed the way for the greater part of the distance, but tired badly. Zeebrugge, from his bad start, closed an immense gap and finished fast.

Dr. Mitchell placed the firing irons to several horses this morning, among them being J. Arthur's Chick and T. Edmond's Dr. Hanley.

Mrs. A. Swenke claimed Vulnad from C. H. Thieriot for $1,500. Six claims were filed for this plater.

Here and There on the Turf

Close of Kentucky Season. How Circuit Has Grown. Racing and Breeding. Case of Senator Norris.

With the racing at Lexington this afternoon the long Kentucky racing season comes to a close. It was at Lexington that the Kentucky Association began this season on April 26 with a ten day's meeting. The Kentucky Jockey Club followed with its meetings at Churchill Downs, Louisville, and Latonia. There was the usual midsummer rest, as far as these two associations were concerned, and then the autumn racing worked back by way of Latonia, Churchill Downs and Lexington.

It was the first time in many years that Lexington brought the Kentucky racing season to a close, although geographically that city was the logical point at which to close the annual racing. There was some apprehension at first on account of this change in dates, but the Lexington meeting has been a thoroughly successful one and doubtless this present arrangement of dates will be continued next year.

There was another Kentucky meeting at Raceland and there were other smaller meetings. The Raceland meeting was a decided addition to the circuit. This racing was through the summer days after Latonia had completed its regular summer meeting. And there was other middle western racing that was so contiguous to Kentucky as to almost be associated with that circuit. That was the racing at Hawthorne and Aurora, the two Chicago tracks. There was nothing in common between Kentucky and these racing associations, but it was racing in an adjacent locality that kept the turfmen of the Middle West well entertained right through the summer and fall.

And that circuit continues to expand, for there is under construction a new course at Coney Island, close to Cincinnati and it is so close to Latonia that it will naturally draw from the same localities for its patronage. This constantly growing circuit tells of the prosperity of its racing and the opportunities for the thoroughbred continue to make their production a profitable enterprise. There is always the danger of overdoing racing in localities but, thus far, it would seem that the patronage has warranted all of the new race courses that have been built. Just so long as the racing itself can be kept clean there can be no reasonable objection to the new tracks coming in and the record of 1924 has been a creditable one.

The way the races have been filling at both Bowie and Lexington tell eloquently of the popularity of late fall racing with horsemen. For the racing at Bowie, Friday, there were 110 horses named for the seven races and several entries had to be excluded. At Lexington the seven races attracted 70 entries and in mid-season programs are seldom so large.

Five of these seven races at Lexington were over the Futurity course, which is short of three-quarters, while the remaining two were at a mile and an eighth and a mile and seventy yards respectively.

At Bowie, where Joseph McLennan has been particularly successful in filling races at longer distances that are usual for fall racing, three of the dashes were at seven-eighths, one at six and a half furlongs and the other three at a mile and seventy yards, a mile and a sixteenth and a mile and an eighth respectively. The longer distance races are popular, as was shown by the fact that the mile and an eighth attracted twenty entries. All of this augurs well for the winter racing that will begin Thanksgiving Day. The majority of the horses now racing at both Lexington and Bowie will be at one or other of the winter tracks. Of course, several of them will rest until the racing begins again in either Kentucky or Maryland, in the spring, but to a great extent winter tracks find their material at the late fall meetings.

And with the constantly growing breeding interests in this country it is well that there should be adequate racing opportunity for the product. It is the opportunity that fixes the value of the yearlings.

When racing fell into a bad way by reason of persecution, the thoroughbred breeding suffered a severe setback. The production has not yet returned to the measure of the days before it was found politic to close the New York race courses for both 1911 and 1912. But in late years there has come a steady increase, until now it is promised that the production will go on until a new high mark will be established before long.

Away back in the spring H. G. Bedwell would not have traded his chances in the Preakness Stakes or the Kentucky Derby with anybody. His candidate was Senator Norris, son of Cudgel and Cypher Code. This colt had gone into winter retirement winner of the Walden Handicap, and in his early preparation for the big three-year-old stake races trained in a fashion that held out high hopes for his victory in one or both of the big races. In fact, Senator Norris created such an impression that an offer of $65,000 that was made for him was refused by Bedwell. But Senator Norris was not brought to the post for either engagement.

This same Senator Norris was campaigned right through the racing season, doing most of his racing in Canada, and did not win a race until he was home first in a condition race at Fort Erie in July. That was over a fast track and he ran a mile in 1:42, while the track record for the distance is 1:37 1/2.

Following this there was more campaigning and the son of Cudgel was not again a winner until his victory Thursday at Bowie. But it was a victory to atone for several defeats, when he ran his three-quarters in 1:12 1/2, establishing a new track record. The previous record was 1:12 1/2, made by R. F. Carman's Startling on November 24, 1917. It was in error that the Bowie program carried that time as 1:12 1/2.

Of course, this record-making three-quarters does not proclaim Senator Norris a $65,000 colt. He was valued at that figure because of his chance of winning, possibly, both the Preakness Stakes and the Kentucky Derby. But Senator Norris seems to be coming back and he is another of the Bowie horses that is at home over the peculiar going at that course.

Again there is brought home the fact that much of the value of a good horse lies in his engagements. The breeder who does not liberally engage his foals is practicing false economy, whether or not the foals measure up to the stakes for which they have been made eligible. One foal will make his line famous if he proves a champion, but he can hardly prove his championship unless he has the opportunity in the races best calculated to earn the crown.

The English Jockey Club has fixed a rate of values in computing winnings in foreign countries. After free discussion it was voted that all money remit values of foreign countries should be computed at par, that being the rule in this country, established by the Jockey Club as far as America is concerned, but it is only the same to make easy the fixing of penalties and allowances of the foreigners.

When there was money depreciation in many of the European countries, by reason of

TRUE STORY OF A CHAMPION

Dam of Sarazen Bought for a Song by Dr. Johnston.

Third International Special a Complete Vindication of Blood Lines Upheld by Miss Daingerfield.

In all the vast throng that witnessed the running of the International Special, No. 3, at Latonia some time ago, there was no happier person than Miss Elizabeth Daingerfield, and deservedly so. It is doubtful if even Mrs. Vanderbilt was more jubilant over the result of the race than was she. Because that result was a complete vindication and confirmation of the belief in blood lines that she has always confidently held and valiantly supported. Every one knows how high a value she has ever placed on the blood of Ultimus, which horse typified in breeding just what his name implies to both Major Daingerfield and the daughter who has so ably carried on his work.

High Time, the sire of Sarazen, whose marvelous exhibition of speed and stamina in winning the Third International race will ever make it one of the bright lights of turf history, was bred by Miss Daingerfield, when in charge of Mr. Price McKinney's Wickliffe Stud, for the sole purpose of giving this country a worthy successor to Ultimus.

What more appropriate than that when his racing days were over that he should be placed in her charge by his owner, Admiral Cary Grayson, and make his initial bow to the public in the role of sire at her Haylands Farm, near Lexington. Anxious that this son of Ultimus and Noonday, by Domino, should have every opportunity, Miss Daingerfield spent much time and thought in selecting suitable mates for him. The story of how Rush Box, the dam of Sarazen, came to his court, reads like a fairy tale, but is only one of many similar instances that makes the lure of the turf irresistible.

RUSH BOX FOUND ON FARM.

Some time in the year 1920 there appeared in a paper a small ad, stating that George Carley of Scott county had mares for sale, and Miss Daingerfield, seeing this and knowing that Mr. Carley in years past had owned such good and substantial mares as Sallie Ward, Belle Nutter, Eric Belle and others, went immediately to his home in the country near Georgetown, Ky., and there found the two young mares, Rush Box, then five years old, and British Fleet, three.

Mr. Carley was ill and his daughter was eager to dispose of these mares, as her whole time and attention were absorbed in caring for her father. Miss Daingerfield was particularly desirous to secure these mares as mates for High Time, but as her farm was overcrowded at the time, she was unable to buy them, and tried without success to interest several breeders in their purchase. Finally, she secured the attention of Dr. Marius Johnston, not then a breeder, but a man from a lone line of horsemen and himself an excellent judge. He went with her to see the mares and picked them up for a song. They neither had been broken even to ride, in fact, were hardly halter broken, but were sturdy and strikingly nice individuals and admirably suited to High Time, which horse Dr. Johnston held in high esteem.

In due course, Sarazen was foaled at Dr. Johnston's Montrose Farm, and later purchased by Colonel Phil T. Chinn, who developed him and sold him to Mrs. Vanderbilt as a two-year-old. The whole world now knows how he has gone from one victory to another under the capable handling of her trainer, Max Hirsch.

DARE SAY IS TURNED OUT

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 21.—Frederick Johnson's three-year-old filly, Dare Say, was this morning transferred to the Johnson farm to be turned out until spring. T. J. Harmon, trainer for Mr. Johnson, will ship a stable of fifteen horses, including eight yearlings, to New Orleans Sunday morning.

POST TIME

How many of the great thoroughbreds named recently in this column ever beat good ones—even a single good horse—and were not subsequently beaten decisively by one of these same horses?

Some fifty racing men with authority to speak on the subject have expressed belief in the greatness of certain horses. Many of the gentlemen whose opinions we have quoted have been looking at thoroughbred horses with seeing eyes for more than forty years.

Several of the trainers among them have developed and trained some of the best horses that have appeared since Longfellow's time. They have saddled winners of our classic races. A few were reckoned master of their profession on both sides of the Atlantic.

At least three of the jockeys who gave us their opinions have been astride horses rated as champions in their time. One or two were galloping good horses when four mile heat racing was just beginning to lose its popularity—the early '70's. They rode later in some of the most famous of our long-distance struggles. James Rowe was in Harry Bassett's saddle when the McDaniel horse beat Longfellow in that Saratoga Cup that has long marked as an epoch in American racing. Matt Byrnes rode Glenelg in the '60's, before Rowe was big enough to sit in a saddle. "Snapper" Garrison was on the swayed back of Tenny when the son of Rayon d'Or ran the last three furlongs of Sheephead Bay so fast, so determinedly, as to move Ella Wheeler Wilcox to pen verses that made of Salvatore and Tenny living personalities to every school child of imagination. Fred Taral was the demon finisher that whipped and spurred Domino to even terms on the post with Dobbins and Henry of Navarre, two of the most sensational dead heats in the history of racing in America.

Byrnes and Rowe have since trained many of our best. Taral and Garrison have met with success as trainers. One or two of the breeders quoted have been responsible for matings of blood lines that produced champions. More than one of the owners interviewed has had his colors carried to victory in derbies, futurities and handicaps—by some of the best horses of their day.

Each of the handicappers who expressed an opinion has made a success of his calling—a profession in which complete financial success is rarely attained, as any who has attempted it on his own will tell you.

The writers who gave their opinions have been reporting racing over long periods. They have seen some of the best, they have looked with analytical minds into the records of the good horses that appeared before their time. They have enjoyed intimate acquaintance with a host of men qualified to discuss varying phases of racing. Like all good reporters, they were good questioners, excellent listeners and eventually became keen observers.

Officials of long experience and the highest standing are among the men whose opinions we sought. Mr. Vosburgh has seen every good horse from Glenelg and Muggins down to the present day. If you have never read his "Racing in America" you have missed a rare treat. A copy is available in New York's public library.

Only about a dozen of all these men of racing's many walks of life have refused to concede Man o' War the title of "great." All who have denied him have given the same reason: "What did he ever beat?" If beating a truly good horse, a "cell of a horse," as a character in a racing tale of John Galsworthy's was wont to exclaim, and not subsequently meeting defeat at the hands of that same horse—if such be the true test of greatness, then Man o' War must be sent to the side lines. For no names of greatness of tremendous arts appear on the scalps hanging to the "Wonder Horse's" saddle girths.

And by the same indictment Sysonby, Morello, Tammany, Hamburg and Colin must join Man o' War. They beat little. As Freeland, The Bard, Longstreet, Hermis, Purchase and Sir Barton received honorable mention but once or twice, it is obvious that their defeats at times just when they were coming to be looked upon as invincible must have dimmed the lustre of previous conquests. They all beat good horses that would have been rated high in any day, but they were in turn beaten by those horses.

And the sentiment expressed in the previous sentence covers Kingston, Firenze, Hanover, Henry of Navarre, Exterminator and Grey Lag. Kingston and Firenze beat at one time and another at least a dozen horses of the first flight. But every one of the dozens in turn beat them. Kingston was not partial to a route, Firenze stood always in need of one. Hanover did not compare to Tremont at two, was twice beaten by second and third raters at three and lost to The Bard at four. Henry of Navarre had no real equine gladiators to oppose him. Like Firenze he lacked extreme speed. Exterminator improved with age but he didn't master Sir Barton or Purchase; Grey Lag and Mad Hatter beat him about as often as he did them. Grey Lag's record is replete with brilliant performances and, like Hermis, off-color ones. Their partisans charge the shortcomings to Grey Lag's bad feet and inconsistent training methods for Hermis. Still, Waterboy stood Hermis on his head in the Century when a good trainer had him in perfect shape and even Sam Hildreth has no alibi to offer for "old Red's" defeat by Exterminator in the 1922 Brooklyn. Sam thinks Old Slim was one "cell of a horse" and that ought to hold the lads who insist that Grey Lag was a super-horse.

And now only Luke Blackburn, Hindoo, Salvatore and Artful remain. The latter filly may have been what her admirers claim. She had speed of the highest degree. But when she ran Sysonby off his feet she was in receipt of ten pounds and the Keene colt was jammed up at the start. Had they carried equal weights and broken together, both full in their stride, Artful might not have looked so good. And her three-year-old campaign, brilliant as it was in promise, did not compare with Beldame's in accomplishment. Artful was in receipt of much weight in her smashing victory in the Brighton. If Firenze, nearly always conceding weight, is to be denied, then so must Artful, so often in receipt of poundage.

Luke Blackburn was ordinary at two, very ordinary. At three he beat good horses but none that were great or in any sense invincible. Exterminator would appear to be the equal of any horse Blackburn ever beat. He broke down in his first effort at four. Nearly all of his victories were under light weights, many as low as 100 pounds, several at 110, hardly any above 118.

The same is true of Hindoo. He beat Thora, Eole and Checkmate, good ones all, but no better than those beaten by a host of other first class horses. And too often Hindoo carried but modest weights.

Salvator's Suburban victory is comparable to that of any horse in our racing annals. He gave weight and a beating to a big field of good horses, in excellent time. He always was master of Tenny, surely a good horse on certain days—at least two of which good days coincided with his races against the Haggin crack. The flight of speed shown by Salvatore in his breaking of the mile record was phenomenal, yet no greater than that shown by a dozen others over the same distance of ground. Salvatore was decisively beaten by Longstreet. It was a defeat he did not wipe out. Salvatore never beat Proctor Knott, in two tries. Few judges are willing to believe that Salvatore could have stayed over a real route.

Wherefore, the answer would seem to be that America has never had its Ormonde. The unbeaten English horse that met and administered sound beatings at all distances, under high weights, to some of the best horses the British Isles have produced in more than two hundred years. He did all that was asked of him; and they asked him everything—inclusive of winning over long distance with but forty-eight hours rest between and severely "touched" in his wind at the time.

No, we have never had an Ormonde in this country. And a still, small voice seems to ask if we've ever had a truly great horse. It is doubtful. Hence, as racing men, we have something to live for.

H. D. BROWN IN CHICAGO

Managing Director of Cuban Track Holds Conference With Frank Bruen While Here.

H. D. Brown, managing director of the Cuba-American Jockey Club, arrived in Chicago Thursday morning for a conference with Frank J. Bruen, general manager of the Oriental Park track. Various details of the coming meeting were gone over and everything satisfactorily arranged. Mr. Brown will stop over in Florida on his way to Havana, but will reach there in time for the opening of the meeting.

"There have been numerous queries," said Mr. Brown, "why we changed the opening date at Havana this year to Saturday, November 29, instead of opening on Thanksgiving Day, as in former years. The principal reason is that November 27 is a Memorial Day for students in Cuba, and as these young men are intensely patriotic and hold exercises in accord with the spirit of the occasion, we decided that it was only proper to postpone our opening until Saturday.

"The meeting will positively open on that date and reports to general manager Bruen and myself are that over 500 horses are already quartered at Oriental Park and more will leave Maryland and Kentucky at the conclusion of the Bowie and Lexington meetings.

"We are offering at least $4,000 daily in purses for each card of six races. There will be no purse less than $600, while handicaps will range in value from $1,000 to $5,000.

"We have one of the best staffs of racing officials that could be secured and with a better grade of horses available for the racing, there is every prospect for a wonderful meeting.

"I came direct here from my California breeding farm, where everything is progressing in fine style. Before leaving there I shipped fifteen head of horses to Tijuana, under the charge of trainer W. A. Carter."

CHERRY MALLOTTE DEAD

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Cherry Malotte, favorite hunter and steeplechaser, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney, has been destroyed because of injuries which it suffered in an accident.

Before being retired several years ago, Cherry Malotte won many events in hunt meetings and on the track under the colors of Mrs. Whitney's Greentree Stable.

Cherry Pie, holder of the American record for a mile on the flat, was Cherry Malotte's first foal, by Chicle. From Cherry Malotte's first winnings in races Mrs. Whitney made a trophy for her home and had inscribed on it the winnings of her favorite.

AMERICA'S PLAY GROUND

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 21.—E. R. Bradley has received advices that W. S. Kilmer intends to build a stable at the New Orleans Fair Grounds next year for his own private use. R. T. Wilson and Harry Payne Whitney are also contemplating construction of private stables at the Fair Grounds next year. "We will make it the winter playground of America before long," said Mr. Bradley, as part of his ambitious plans for the Fair Grounds and its racing in the winter.

ANDREW DEVLIN IS DEAD

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 21.—Andrew Devlin, well known to race goers for the past twenty years, died at a Baltimore Hospital yesterday. Mr. Devlin suffered a stroke of paralysis in San Francisco some years back and was forced to use crutches to get around. His remains were shipped to his home, West New York, for interment.

Nearly all of his victories were under light weights, many as low as 100 pounds, several at 110, hardly any above 118.

The same is true of Hindoo. He beat Thora, Eole and Checkmate, good ones all, but no better than those beaten by a host of other first class horses. And too often Hindoo carried but modest weights.

Salvator's Suburban victory is comparable to that of any horse in our racing annals. He gave weight and a beating to a big field of good horses, in excellent time. He always was master of Tenny, surely a good horse on certain days—at least two of which good days coincided with his races against the Haggin crack. The flight of speed shown by Salvatore in his breaking of the mile record was phenomenal, yet no greater than that shown by a dozen others over the same distance of ground. Salvatore was decisively beaten by Longstreet. It was a defeat he did not wipe out. Salvatore never beat Proctor Knott, in two tries. Few judges are willing to believe that Salvatore could have stayed over a real route.

Wherefore, the answer would seem to be that America has never had its Ormonde. The unbeaten English horse that met and administered sound beatings at all distances, under high weights, to some of the best horses the British Isles have produced in more than two hundred years. He did all that was asked of him; and they asked him everything—inclusive of winning over long distance with but forty-eight hours rest between and severely "touched" in his wind at the time.

No, we have never had an Ormonde in this country. And a still, small voice seems to ask if we've ever had a truly great horse. It is doubtful. Hence, as racing men, we have something to live for.

PLANS FOR KILMER STABLE

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 21.—J. P. (Sammy) Smith has been signed up as the trainer for the Kilmer racing stable for 1925, and will have as jockeys, Wallace and Carter, who have also been signed up for the year's exclusive riding. With this powerful aggregation of talent, future prospects of this important stable look very bright.

The horses of the stable will comprise almost entirely the Sun Briars and imported horses. The divisions of the stable are being let out now at Pimlico and will be shipped to Sun Briar Court, Binghamton, N. Y., very shortly to go into winter quarters.

Both Mr. Kilmer and J. P. Smith are to be congratulated on the arrangements. Trainer John I. Smith will be retained as a trainer and in the brood mare department.
